

ABSTRACT

An improved hydraulic system for a marine propulsion unit where it is insured that leakage of the shuttle valve will not permit the propulsion unit to move from the desired position by having a series of shuttle piston operated check valves inn series flow between the pump and the hydraulic unit that controls the position.